DAVEY DEMANDS HELP OF DUFFY

Governor To Fight Action Demanding Compliance With Pension Law

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5—(UP)—Governor Davey, promising a vigorous defense of the mandamus suit to force his administration to comply with federal Social Security board demands in the old age pension controversy, called on Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy today to designate counsel for the governor and his aides at their expense.

The mandamus action was filed in the state supreme court Monday by Edgar S. Byers, Cleveland, to force the governor, Welfare Director Margaret Allman and Wray Bevens, old age pension division head, to comply with Ohio laws.

In a letter to Duffy today, Davey described the suit as a "political action."

Duffy has refused to represent state officials as legal counsel.

"We are most certainly entitled to be represented," the governor wrote Duffy, "and in order to comply with the laws of Ohio I request that you agree to designate lawyers of our choosing as special counsel to appear for us at our expense."

FAILURE TO SEND CHILD TO SCHOOL COSTS KING

Failure to keep a son in school resulted in W. A. King, Jackson township, being assessed $5 and costs, Tuesday, in B. T. Hedges' justice of peace court.

King was charged with failing to send Finley King to the township school. The charge was filed by Joseph Clarridge, county school attendance officer. King made arrangements to pay.

CLYDE BEATTY'S CIRCUS GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 5—(UP)—A bankruptcy suit filed in federal court by the Coles Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus of Rochester, Ind., listed liabilities of $418,338.04 and no assets.

Unsecured claims, notes and bills accounted for $319,324 of the liabilities, the petition set forth.

WORK IN STEEL PLANTS SHOWS BIG INCREASE

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 5—(UP)—Steel production in the Mahoning Valley for the first five days of October has been at 53 percent of capacity.

Republic Steel Corp., added the seventh open hearth to its operations, at Lansingville, will blow in its number 3 blast furnace Wednesday, and will increase bismuth steel output by the end of the week, company officials said.

Republic will suspend virtually all open hearth operations next week while its Lansingville blooming mills are modernized with installation of tight coupling. The work was expected to take five days.

Of the 83 open hearth furnaces in the district, 45 are active, greatest number this year. Blowing in of the Republic furnace will put 12 of the 25 blast furnaces in operation.

Ten more tin mills were placed in operation at the Carnegie works in Farrell, Pa., today. For several months only 20 mills have been operating.

Sharon Steel Corp. started an eight inch mill today and announced a ten inch mill would start Thursday.

BOARD PERMITS BLEACHER USE IN HORSE SHOW

Circleville board of education, Tuesday night, granted the use of the portable bleachers on the high school athletic field to the Pickaway County Agricultural society for the saddle horse show.

The bleachers will be moved to the Mason field, rear of 437 N. Court street, where the saddle horse competition will be staged this year. The field is being improved and will be flood-lighted.

Charles H. May, president of the board, was appointed to meet with councilmen and committeemen of the B. P. O. Elks lodge to discuss the proposed traffic lights on Court street at Mill and Corwin streets for the protection of school children. The board favors the erection of the lights if details can be worked out.

KROGER ESTATE $8,854,914

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5—(UP)—A valuation of $8,854,914 was placed on the estate of the late B. H. Kroger, head of a grocery store chain, by an inventory on file in probate court today. Major holdings included $4,174,279 in bonds, $1,618,279 in stocks, and $2,073,140 in real estate.

FEDERAL JUDGE WEST, 66, DIES

Man, Who Attained Bench Without College Study, Ill Two Months

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5—(UP)—Samuel H. West, a federal judge here for the last 10 years, died early today at the age of 66 years. He had been seriously ill for two months.

Judge West had no college or law school training, but studied law under his uncle, an eminent lawyer and jurist.

In the conduct of his court, he set a rigid standard, countenancing no levity. Attempts at oratory were cut short by him.

The story is told of a young lawyer, who started his case by saying: "You honor, this story rightfully begins one wintry night 12 years ago on Flanders' field."

"No, it doesn't," Judge West broke in.

Private funeral services were being arranged.

Appointed in 1928

Judge West was appointed to the federal bench in December, 1928, to succeed the late David C. (Continued on Page Two)

CUTTER SPEEDS TO AID OF SHIP; 13 FEARED LOST

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 5—(UP)—The coastguard cutter Canlozan steamed through southern waters today en route to the island of Cebu where globe wireless reported the inter-island motorship Dumaguete had foundered with heavy loss of life in a typhoon.

The Dumaguete was approximately 50 miles South of the port of Cebu, third most important Philippine seaport. Meager details indicated that 13 of the motorship's 40 passengers were missing.

Twenty-seven passengers aboard the tiny 56-ton motorship were said to have taken to the open sea in lifeboats. It was not established whether they had been picked up by rescuers.

Jail Keeper's Husky Daughter, Duped By Desperado, Faces Abetting Charge

LEXINGTON, N. C., Oct. 5—(UP)—Lula Belle, jailer's daughter who fell in love with a handsome felon, cried her heart out in jail today, vowing that her first experience with men would be her last one.

Her father locked her up himself and then, in "deep humiliation," resigned his job. Lula Belle, in charge of the jail when he was away, had freed her boy friend and another felon who repaid her faith in them by murdering one man, kidnapping another, and pulling a string of holdups.

Today, a posse was deployed around a woods near here where they believed James Godwin, 19, and Bill Wilson, 21, were hiding. If and when caught they will join Lula Belle in jail, on a charge of murder. Lula Belle was charged

National League Fans Look To Tony Lazzeri To Help Chicago's Cause

ODDS FAVOR YANK CREW

Cubs' Chances Depend On Good Right Arm Of Big Bill

CHICAGO, Oct. 5—(UP)—Big Bill Lee and Red Ruffing were ready to go to the mound this afternoon under cloudy skies and before a capacity crowd to start pitching the first game of the 1938 World Series. Lee, who tossed the Cubs into the National league pennant after the most gruelling race in many years, carried the hopes of Gabby Hartnett's boys in his trusting right flipper. If Lee fails, so do the Cubs, most of the Windy City fans believe.

Ruffing, a cool worker and a slugger in his own right, baffled the National league sufficiently to win 21 games while losing only seven for the Yankees. Lee was on top in his loop 22 times.

A fresh but moderate breeze was blowing in from left and center fields. The temperature was just above the 60-degree mark. Thursday's game will be played under the same conditions. Weather Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted, with probably not so cloudy skies.

Odds On Yankees

Odds favored the New York club, which coasted through the last month of the league race, but there were many who believed General Lee could outthrust Ruffing in the opening, making prices on that game even. National league enthusiasts, too, looked to Tony Lazzeri, long a Yankee, to help the Cub cause. With exception of young Joe Gordon, his successor at second base, he knows the power and weakness of each member of the Yankee murderer's row, which extends from Crossett at the top to Ruffing at the bottom of the batting order.

Armistice In Labor War Asked By President; N.L.R.B. To Be Hit

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 5—(UP)—President Roosevelt's appeal for an armistice in labor's civil war was given a cool reception by American Federation of Labor leaders today.

High officials of the 58 year old organization in convention here generally agreed with Mr. Roosevelt's plea that no doors to peace with the rival Committee for Industrial Organization be closed by the federation. Likewise, they agreed with the chief executive's warning that continued warfare ultimately will precipitate a public reaction which will "injure the workers."

None saw in the President's message a hint that he had offered or would offer his services as a mediator in the dispute. But there was general agreement that if a "definite proposition" for White House mediation came forward, the federation's executive council probably would "regard it favorably."

The resolutions committee was preparing a bitter attack on the New Deal's National Labor Relations board and was drafting proposed amendments to the Wagner (Continued on Page Two)

F. D.'S SON MAY WATCH SECOND CUB-YANK TILT

ROCHESTER, Minn., Oct. 5—(UP)—James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, who is recovering from a gastric ulcer operation, may attend the second game of the World Series between the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees at Chicago tomorrow.

"If the weather is warm and I am permitted to do so, I'll be there," he said.

He planned to leave Rochester tonight at 8:30 by train for Chicago, enroute to California for a two month vacation. He has spent the last week at the home of his physician, Dr. Howard K. Gray, who operated on him at Mayo clinic three weeks ago.

He plans to leave Chicago Thursday night by train for Oakland, Cal. He will drive from there to Hollister, Cal., for a visit until Dec. 1 at the ranch of a friend, Walter P. Murphy, a Chicagoan.

CHEMIST NAMED DEFICIT IN U. S. AS RESPONSIBLE TREASURY GOES IN POISON CASE TO RECORD HIGH

DETROIT, Oct. 5—(UP)—Deaths of four inmates of Eloise hospital were blamed by Superintendent Thomas K. Gruber today on "the inexplicable act" of a chemist employed by the hospital. The chemist, Hugh McCallum, a graduate of Carnegie Tech, was given a job in the hospital laboratory washing chemical glassware. The Superintendent said he believed McCallum obtained methyl alcohol, drank it and gave it to three inmates to drink. All died.

McCallum, according to Dr. Gruber, was transferred to his institution from receiving hospital last July. The chemist had been a patient at both institutions.

Autopsies on the bodies of the four victims were to be performed today by Dr. Edmund J. Knobloch, county coroner. The other victims were Edward Carsons, 45; Anthony Pfeffer, 45, and Henry Ramelow, 53. The Eloise hospital investigation showed they died from the poison alcohol, taken from a laboratory bottle.

HERE'S CHANCE TO GAIN PROFIT WITH DISCARDED "CIGAR STORE" REDSKIN

Are there any wooden Indians in cellars or other out-of-the-way places in Circleville? Many recall the stolid and fierce-looking "natives" who used to mark cigar stores, but few persons have seen one recently.

If you know of any, there is an opportunity to make some change.

A movie job was open today for a wooden Indian that looks tough.

Director Cecil B. DeMille has extended his hunt after rejecting half a dozen gentle-faced cigar store Indians he found in Southern California antique shops.

In a scene of DeMille's picture "Union Pacific," the Sioux Indians will come upon a wooden Indian in a box car of a train they wrecked. One brave stands before the wooden Indian, perplexed, then raises his tomahawk to strike.

"But all the wooden Indians so far are Shirley Temples," DeMille said. "I want a fierce wooden red devil. I've got a good spot in the picture if anyone has one in his attic."

FOE OF HITLER ADMITS LOSING LENGTHY FIGHT

Government Leadership Goes Into Hands Of Premier Jan Syrový

DICTATORSHIP POSSIBLE

British And Italians Near Accord; New Pact May Be Signed Soon

PRAGUE, Oct. 5—(UP)—President Eduard Benes resigned today after a losing fight to prevent German absorption of the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia.

The government was left for the time being in the hands of Premier Jan Syrový, one-eyed World War Hero, at the head of a reconstructed cabinet in which the Slovakian minority of the partly dismembered republic has been given stronger representation.

Benes had been president of Czechoslovakia since December, 1935. He was leader of the Czech nationalist movement since World War days and one of the founders of the Little Entente.

As chief delegate to the Versailles peace conference, he sturdily promoted creation of the post-war republic and staunchly defended it in the ensuing years at the League of Nations.

Hitler's Enemy

Benes' policies incurred the bitter enmity of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler. The Fuehrer excoriated him in his recent Nuremberg and Berlin speeches, denouncing him as an unscrupulous plotter and a liar.

In his Berlin speech, Hitler said: "This Czech state began with one big lie and its father's name was Benes."

There were shouts of "hang him" from the crowd.

In the first few sentences of the speech, Hitler said this of his program for middle Europe: "One statesman (Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria) failed to understand—he has been removed and my promise of that has been fulfilled."

The resignation of Benes was regarded as a result of the inevitable change in Czechoslovakia's foreign policy after the amputation of its main defenses, and the fact that British-French military aid was not forthcoming when needed.

Syrový will be provisional president, under present plans, until the national assembly can be summoned to elect a new president.

However, there was considerable confusion of opinion among foreign observers and even Czech officials. Some speculated on the possibility of a possible semi-dictatorship, at least in the interim.

British-Italian Pact Nearly Ready

ROME, Oct. 5—(UP)—A British-Italian agreement to liquidate outstanding disagreements is imminent. (Continued on Page Two) minent, it was reported today in most reliable quarters.

It was even reported that agreement might be reached by tomorrow night.

The Earl of Perth, British ambassador, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, had their third talk within three days this morning.

It was understood that they made further progress toward an agreement which would:

- 1—Bring the withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain.
- 2—Result in bringing into effect the British-Italian pact, concluded in April but hinged on the withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain.
- 3—Result in British recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, which also was a part of the friendship treaty.

In the two talks which preceded that of today, Lord Perth and Ciano were understood to have made most satisfactory progress, particularly as regards liquidating the big problem, the Spanish civil war.

Up-To Council

It was believed that they wanted to finish their task before tomorrow night so that their agreement could be approved by the Fascist grand council, which meets at 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Further, the disclosure at Paris that France intended soon to have a new ambassador to Rome led to a belief here that France and Great Britain already had agreed to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia and to dispose of the civil war problem as soon as possible.

This question has embittered relations between Italy and France for many months.

It was reported during the Czechoslovak crisis that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had proclaimed the neutrality of his Spanish Nationalists, and that Premier Benito Mussolini had started to withdraw his men from Nationalist Spain.

Situation Changed

The signing of the Munich agreement seemed to have changed the general situation as regards troop withdrawal, but not to have interfered with the principle of withdrawal.

It was reported to trustworthy quarters again today that Mussolini had agreed to withdraw considerable numbers of his men from Spain—this time, in view of a decision by the Loyalists to dismiss their foreign volunteers.

One source which is usually most reliable said that Mussolini already had agreed to withdraw Italian infantry from Spain but that no agreement had been reached regarding the disposition of specialists—airplane pilots and anti-aircraft and tank experts, for instance.

TRAIN MARRIAGE STARTS COUPLE ON HONEYMOON

YUMA, Ariz. (UP)—That time, tide and love wait for nothing is vouched for by Yuma's justice of the peace, Ed M. Winn, who married Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Cecil of Los Angeles on a transcontinental train.

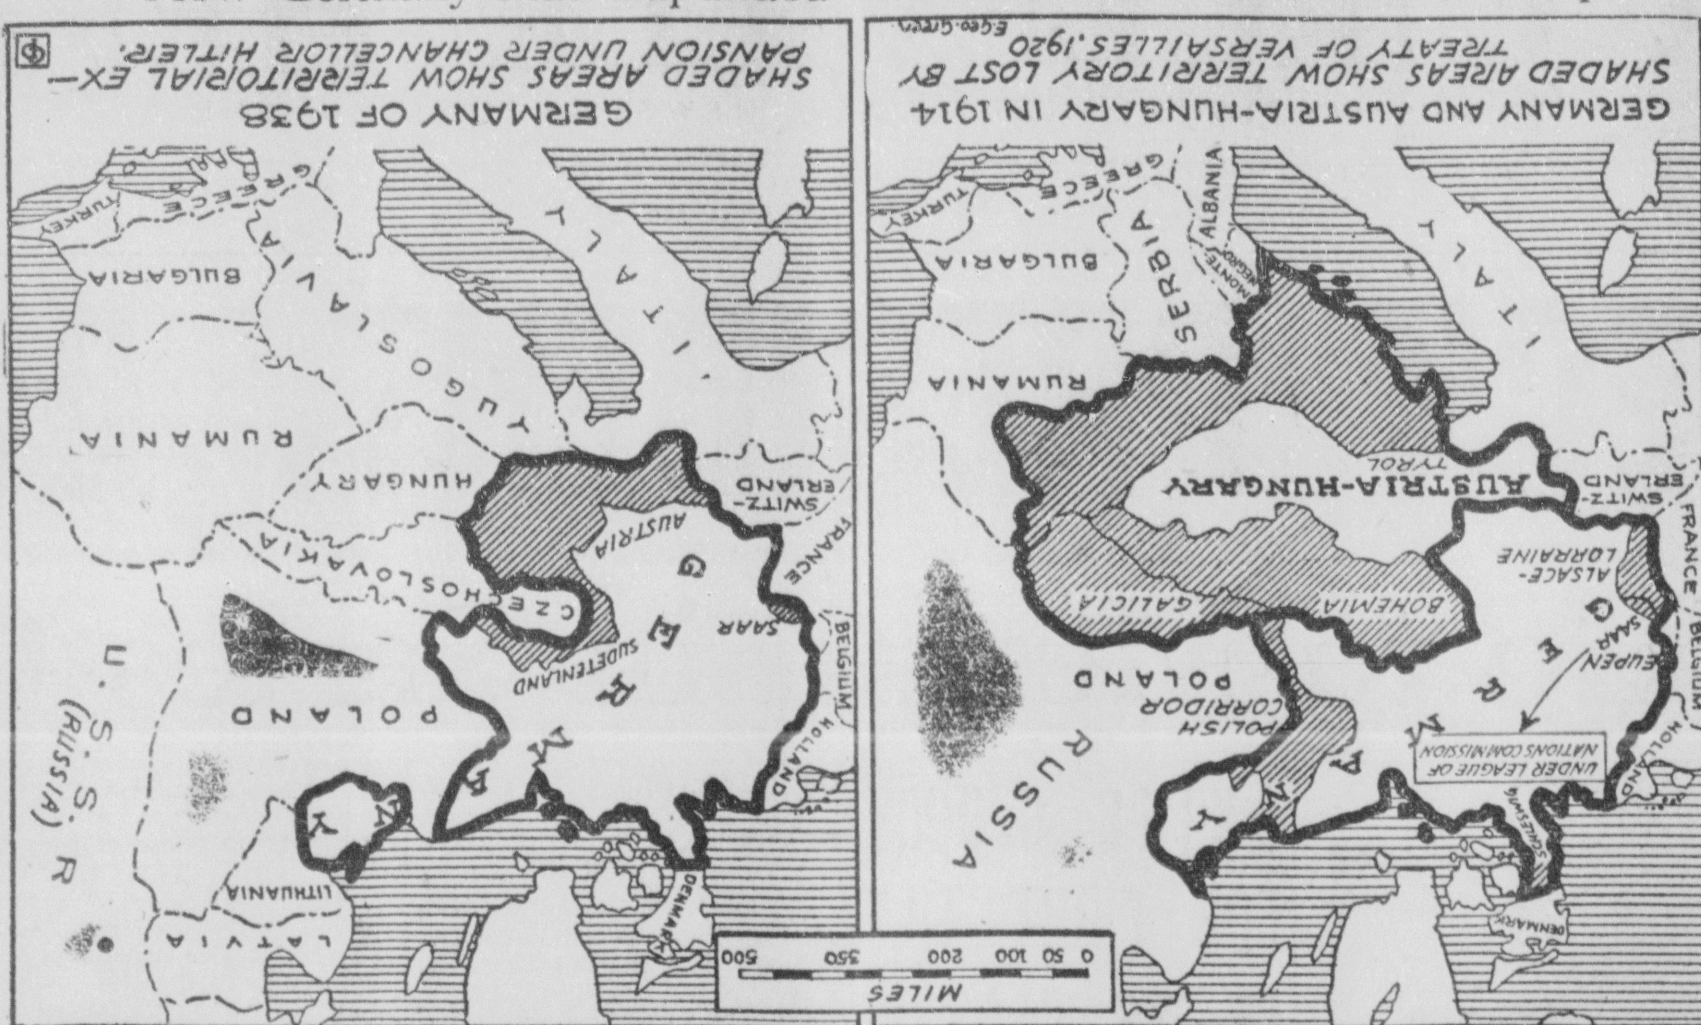

Henrietta Smith, the future Mrs. Cecil, vacationed in Mexico City. Dr. Cecil grew impatient for her return and by consulting time-tables he found a 20-minute stop-over of Henrietta's train at Yuma would do the trick very nicely.

Dr. Cecil flew from Los Angeles to Yuma, proposed to Henrietta as soon as the train stopped, procured both her consent and the license, and got Justice Winn to tie the knot while the train chugged engines.

Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Cecil then continued on into Los Angeles on the same train on their honeymoon.

and Mrs. William Lambert of Waverly, and they spent the afternoon at Lake White.

How Germany Has Expanded Under Adolf Hitler's Leadership

THIS self-explanatory map shows how Germany has expanded under Fuehrer Adolf Hitler. The German Fuehrer has acquired the Saar Basin by plebiscite; Austria by bloodless conquest and the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia by threat and negotiation. There are six remaining regions once a part of Germany but German spokesmen say Hitler has no intentions of making moves to bring them back into the German fold. The six are the Polish Corridor, Eupen, Schleswig, the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, the Tyrol area of northern Italy and the Transylvania area of Rumania. The map shows these areas.

Jail Keeper's Daughter Faces Abetting Charge

get out. They're going to kill me in the lethal chamber."

Lula Belle couldn't bear the thought of "such a nice young man" dying in the lethal chamber, North Carolina's method of executing condemned felons. She knew that the law provided the death penalty for bandits but she didn't know it was rarely if never invoked and soon she was suffering acutely from the ever-present thought of "Jimmy's" imminent and certain execution.

Monday afternoon her father left her in charge of the jail. "He promised me he would go to church and would behave and I believed him," Lula Belle said. "I wish I hadn't let him out. I didn't think what embarrassment it would cause the sheriff and my family. I just didn't think."

After Lula Belle gave him the key to his cell, he freed his pal, Wilson. They stole a pistol from Jailor Kimel's living quarters, stole a taxi-cab, escaped. Yesterday they killed Donald Moss, a textile worker, who was slow in obeying their command to turn over his car.

Confession Gained

Lula Belle at first couldn't explain the escape but her father questioned her and yesterday afternoon she confessed. Sobbing, the old man, who sings bass in the church choir, led his daughter back into the jail and locked her in a cell, then wrote to his superior, Sheriff Raymond Bowers:

"I am humiliated and grieved beyond control, and have locked up my own daughter in jail in order that justice might find its course. Just why Lula Belle should do such an act I am unable to understand. She has assisted both Mrs. Kimel and myself and worked hard at the jail all hours of the day and night and up to this time has been entirely loyal, obedient, and trustworthy."

"Immediately on the discovery of the information of the jail delivery I gave the alarm and my investigation finally brought out the truth. I want you to relieve me of my duties as deputy sheriff and jailer pending full and complete investigation by your office, the county authorities, and the courts."

Lula Belle was disillusioned when informed of Jimmy's refusal to immediate reform. But she was broken-hearted when informed that he had a wife and was the father of a baby. Some of the letters she had so unsuspectingly carried back to his cell, had been from his wife.

DePRIEST GOES TO JAIL

Andrew DePriest, 52, who gave no address, was fined $50 and costs by B. T. Hedges, justice of peace, Wednesday, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly Tuesday night. He was arrested in Jackson township by the sheriff's department. The charge was filed by Robert Ramsey, Jackson township. DePriest was unable to pay his fine and costs. He was committed to jail.

BULKLEY SENDS PENSION PLEAS TO DAVEY'S AIDE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(UP)—Sen. Robert J. Bulkley relayed today to Ohioans who are concerned lest the state lose federal funds for old age pensions a suggestion by Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the social security board, that their views be presented to Governor Davey and Wray Bevins, chief of the state pension office.

Following receipt of telegrams from officers of the fraternal order of Eagles, Senator Bulkley sent the following reply:

"I have discussed the matter with Chairman Altmeyer of the social security board who says he wants to cooperate but needs the cooperation of Director Bevins and suggests your views be made known to Bevins or Governor Davey."

Senator Bulkley said he had received wires from persons in Newark, New Lexington, Delaware, Mansfield, and Upper Sandusky asking him to use his good offices to prevent withholding of federal funds after the deadline set by the federal board.

MARKET CLIMBS SHARPLY, HITTING NEW HIGH MARKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(UP)—Stocks whipped forward one to more than two points today to the highest levels in about a year in trading that clogged tickers.

Early demand, which had centered in building shares, spread to other sections and prices pushed forward aggressively when investment demand was augmented by heavy outside buying.

General Motors rose 1 1/2 to 50, while Chrysler almost equaled its 1933 top by rising 2 3/4 points to 77. Bethlehem and U. S. Steel moved up 1 1/2.

U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Du Pont, International Harvester preferred and a long list of building shares made new highs for the year.

5,060 LICENSES ISSUED

Approximately 4,300 drivers' and 760 chauffeurs' licenses have been issued to date by James McLaughlin, local registrar. Total issued for the year ending last Sept. 30 was 5,700 drivers' and 890 chauffeurs' licenses.

FEDERAL JUDGE WEST, 66, DIES

Man, Who Attained Bench Without College Study, Ill Two Months

Westenhaver. He resigned as general counsel for the New York Central railroad here to accept the appointment.

He was born in Iowa, son of a Baptist clergyman. At 18, he learned telegraphy and worked as a station agent for the Iowa Central railroad. He went to Bellefontaine, O., in 1891. His uncle, William H. West, was a lawyer and served on the Ohio supreme court.

Samuel West went to Columbus with his uncle when he was a supreme court judge and acted as his secretary. He studied law in his uncle's office and was admitted to the bar in 1893.

Later, Samuel West became Bellefontaine City solicitor and Logan county prosecutor. In 1903 he was elected to the Ohio senate. In 1908 he became general solicitor for the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton. Then he became a partner in the firm of West and West with his uncle.

In 1910 he went to Cleveland as assistant counsel for the old Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad. During the World War, the federal administration of railroads appointed him general attorney for the New York Central lines, with jurisdiction in Ohio, and part of Pennsylvania and New York.

He became known as an expert on corporation law.

Although born of Baptist parents, he became a Presbyterian.

He found occasional recreation in golf.

Judge West is survived by his widow, a son, William, and two married daughters, Alice and Eleanor. The West family home is in Cleveland Heights.

FRENCH SENATE GIVES DALADIER FULL SUPPORT

PARIS, Oct. 5—(UP)—The senate today voted Premier Edouard Daladier full financial powers to meet the emergency arising from French mobilization during the European crisis. The senate and chamber previously had approved the cabinet's foreign policy.

The senate vote was 284 to 4. Immediately thereafter it suspended sessions for a parliamentary vacation, leaving Daladier a triumph on foreign policy but a split in the popular front uniting the Radical Socialist, Socialist and Communist parties since 1936.

HANEFELD SUE FOR POSITION BY COUNTY MAN

John C. Tinkey, Tarlton,
Claims Civil Service
Job Taken Away

WRECK INJURY BLAMED

Mandamus Petition Filed
In Court Of Appeals
At Columbus

J. C. Tinkey, of Tarlton, who served as Ohio deputy sealer of weights and measures in the Davey administration until he was injured in an automobile accident June 21, 1937, had filed action, Wednesday, in the court of appeals at Columbus to compel Director of Agriculture Earl Hanefeld to return him to his post.

Tinkey's suit was a mandamus petition. He claims that the position is under civil service. His injuries Mr. Tinkey charges, were received in line of duty. He was under medical care until last June 14 when he returned to Columbus to his work, but, he claims, Mr. Hanefeld refused to assign him any duties.

He said Hanefeld informed the civil service commission Aug. 18 that he had granted Tinkey an indefinite leave of absence. The civil service commission, he said, ordered Tinkey's reinstatement, explaining, Tinkey was not willing to accept the leave and that the commission could not approve it except with his consent. Tinkey was granted an alternative writ answerable Nov. 5.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU— BY BOB BURNS

This is the greatest country in the world for automobiles. I heard one fella say that his house leaked so bad that when it rained, the family goes out and sleeps in the limousine. I heard another fella tell his boy to take the car in and fill her up and if he had any money left, get a loaf of bread.

Last Summer I was going through a little town in the Middle West and I stopped in a bank to cash a check for $10.00. The banker says, "I know the check is good, but there ain't that much money in the bank, but I'll take you over to the gasoline station and introduce you to the fella!"

Another Spider's Web Watched For War Word

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

The WAR spider that we told you of yesterday disappeared during the night and from the disturbed surrounding grass where the spider had been located, it is believed someone carried it away, web and all being gone. But directly across the street from the O'Day home is another one of the same specie only slightly smaller. This one is in the door yard of Edward Dewey and is being closely watched about the movements it makes. It is spinning some web, but up to mid-afternoon, no letters of the alphabet had appeared.

Ashville—The Ashville Grain Co. continues to receive new corn direct from two pickers, the one, the Coon Brothers, and the other, Harley Rhinehart on 23. The moisture content yet remains at about the 25 mark with the price declining, 31 cents yesterday, a cent lower than the day before. Much wheat is being sown now and we will make a guess considerable of it in the dust, but according to these old sure sign boys, it is "sow in the dust, reap you must."

Ashville—John Hampson, son of Harry and Mrs. Hampson, was here Tuesday visiting his parents. Mr. Hampson is a guard at the Ohio penitentiary and has been for the past eleven years, the first two being at the walls.

TOSCANINI ON WAY TO GOTHAM

Famed Conductor Leaves
LeHavre: Wife, Daughter
Await Next Boat

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Arturo Toscanini, orchestra conductor, delayed so long in Italy he was traveling at a speed out of keeping with his years to keep an engagement in New York, was asked today if reports that the Italian government had refused to permit him to depart were true. He replied: "The story is not true. The government denied it."

Toscanini, hurried, apparently unwilling to talk, was interviewed in Saint Lazare station where he caught the boat train that put him aboard the liner Normandie sailing from Le Havre at noon. He had raced across Paris by automobile from the train which had brought him from his home in Milan, stopping by the offices of the French line where he got the last accommodation on the Normandie—a cabin which he must share with another voyager.

He had been met and was pursued by reporters but refused to utter one word to them until he was in sight of the boat train. There he posed for pictures with his granddaughter.

"Maestro, how did the reports that you were detained in Milan start?" he was asked.

"You're a reporter," he replied. "You ought to know."

The Toscaninis apparently had made no reservations nor arrangements for their voyage though the maestro has been under contract to conduct a series of radio concerts in New York beginning October 15. The French line was unable to provide accommodations for Mrs. Toscanini and their daughter and they will have to wait for the next boat.

Toscanini and his wife left Milan last night. No one had been able to see them and it was reported that the Italian government had refused him a passport to go abroad because of his anti-Fascist views. If it had, it evidently had changed its mind.

Two Cub Ball Players Cheer Stricken Youth

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(UP)—John Edward English, 14, is a Cubs' fan. For a month he had cheered their drive down the home stretch, seen them win the National league pennant, prayed that they will defeat the New York Yankees in the World Series. During that month he has fought against neuroma, a fast-spreading form of cancer that follows along the nerves, and has defeated predictions of physicians that, at any moment, he would lose his battle and die.

Dr. David G. Berens has given him only a 1,000 to one chance to live. Yesterday he would give him only another month at most. That was before the boy awoke and found two of his heroes, Bill Jurgens, Cubs' shortstop, and Rip Collins, Cubs' first baseman standing beside his bed.

"We heard you were sick and couldn't get to any of the games," Jurgens grinned, "so we thought we'd drop out and see you."

"And we brought you these," Collins said, holding out two baseballs. "We thought you might like them."

Balls Autographed

John took them. On one were the autographs of all the Cub players, on the other, the autographs of all the Yankee players. His voice was shaky. He hadn't known Collins and Jurgens were going to visit him.

"Gee... thanks," he said. He had been a husky youth, had played baseball with his eighth grade classmates. Last April he underwent an operation for a tumor on his side. He appeared to be recovering. Then he had a relapse and physicians realized he was a victim of neuroma, usually fatal within five or six months at the most.

Despite all predictions, he has held on.

He chatted for a long time with Collins and Jurgens. He was brightest when they promised that the Cubs would win the series.

"You must beat them," he said. "If I get well quick enough maybe I can see you play."

"Sure," Collins said.

John's mother took the players aside before they left and thanked them for their kindness.

"We've prayed for a miracle,"

she said. "Maybe this is the beginning. He seems better already."

"VEXING GOD"
A READER opportunely recalls, and produces, a notable passage from Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables" regarding Napoleon, and suggests its application to Germany's present Napoleon-Hitler.
"It was time," wrote Hugo, "that this vast man should fall."
"The excessive weight of this man in human destiny disturbed the equilibrium. The individual counted of himself alone more than the universe beside. These plethoras of all human vitality concentrated in a single head, the world mounting to the brain of one man, would be fatal to civilization if they should endure. The moment had come for the incorruptible supreme equity to look to it. Probably the principles and elements upon which the regular gravitations in the moral order as well as the material depend, began to murmur. Reeking blood, over-crowded cemeteries, weeping mothers — there are formidable plagues. When the earth is suffering from a surcharge there are mysterious moanings from the depths which the heavens hear."
"Napoleon has been impeached before the infinite and his fall was decreed."
"He vexed God."
"Let him who vexes God beware!"

OUR OWN WARS
POSSIBLY we Americans are too self-righteous about our peacefulness and reasonableness. We criticize wars abroad, but seem more tolerant of internal wars at home.
Edward F. McGrady, expert on labor relations, did some good things on this subject lately to a large group of leaders in business, industry and labor.
"I like the word 'voluntary,'" he told them. "It connotes freedom, which we Americans value so highly. It has been my experience that when men are given the opportunity for voluntary action, their efforts are usually successful."
"The great immediate task of the American people is to put their own economic house in order. This can be done only by removing the causes which create bitterness, waste and industrial warfare, and by substituting patience, education, tolerance and confidence between the leaders of industry and labor."
"Industry has become the very life-blood of the country, and must be given a chance to live and grow. Too many human values are at stake to allow it to be dealt with unfairly."
"I believe there is a solution for all human problems. The problems of industry and labor are essentially human and can therefore be solved. Patience, reason and complete co-operation is the answer. Industrial peace is not a God-given product. It must be cultivated and worked for constantly."

World At A Glance
—By— Charles P. Stewart
State, War and Navy department officials are in very general agreement that, while Herr Hitler survives, war in Europe will continue to threaten.
The idea is that, whatever he may get, he'll want more, and sooner or later a show-down will be inevitable.
It may be the inevitable even in the event of Hitler's elimination. Should he be extinguished in some fashion it is recognized that he will be succeeded by one of his present "top-fishers," who will be almost certain to try to carry on just as Adolf himself has been doing. To be sure, the original Hitler has a sort of appeal that no substitute for him perhaps could go on furnishing indefinitely. Not that Adolf is given credit for any transcendent ability, but evidently he does possess a quality of "it" that the German temperament responds to extraordinarily. He probably would be hard to replace with any guarantee of permanency.
THERE TO STAY
Still, his "liquidation" would not immediately dispose of the German war threat.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.
F. D. R. PROPOSES NEW DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON—The President did some straight-from-the-shoulder talking during his last conference with the wage-battled railroad heads and brotherhood chiefs.
Neither camp has said anything publicly about the surprise packages but they are still gasping.
Principal surprise was the information that he is seriously considering legislation, this winter, to supplant the 50-year-old Interstate Commerce Commission with a Department of Transportation. This would be empowered with broad authority for drastic rehabilitation of the railroads and regulation of all forms of interstate transportation.
Roosevelt made no bones about his disgust with the ICC and its failure to solve the long-standing railroad problem. He said the agency had become so snarled in its own red tape as to be useless. The only remedy seemed to be creation of a complete new body.
While his callers were still blinking over this, the President jolted them again with equally blunt observations about the proposed 15 percent wage cut.
He said it was economically unsound, indefensible and would solve nothing. If the slash went through it was sure to be followed by a general axing of wage levels which could mean only one thing—widespread public unrest and business setbacks.
"Cutting wages isn't the remedy for your troubles," the President shot at the railroad executives. "That is like trying to put a patch on an inner tube that is all shot to pieces. What you have got to do is to put your financial houses in order. That's the answer to your difficulties, not this unwarranted wage cut."

The President warned that he is still emphatically opposed to government ownership, but it might become necessary if the carriers persist in their disastrous financial practices.
To illustrate his point he cited an experience in his own family.
"My grandfather," he said "bought five bonds of a railroad in New York 75 years ago. Those bonds have never been retired. My mother still has them."
The carriers, the President insisted, have to get rid of "railroad bankers and railroad lawyers" if there is to be permanent rehabilitation.
"They are the ones who are the cause of all your ills," he asserted. "They have been milking the roads dry for decades. All they are interested in is draining off the profits. A sound and economically operated transportation system supplying the nation with good service and paying workers just wages is no concern of theirs."
The rail officials, plainly nonplussed by the President's tart lecture, listened in silence. Finally, he turned squarely on them and asked:
"Well, gentlemen, where do you stand? Are you willing to abandon your wage cut and get together with the government and labor on a legislative program to cure the ills of your industry?"

fairs, what we have been telling the Old World in its international affairs. And in this field we ourselves can learn from Europe. Some of the nations over there, especially England and the Scandinavian countries, seem to handle their capital-and-labor relations better than we do.

There's no promise of his early "liquidation," either.
Of his popularity in the Fatherland there is no question. He can't be voted out. He isn't going to resign. Assuredly he won't die voluntarily. Nobody likes to suggest that it would be a blessing for some one to "bump him off" with a bomb or a pistol shot. Indeed, there are folk who oppose assassination in any situation. They argue that, in the long run, it's a bad method. Furthermore, Adolf appears to be extremely competent at protecting himself against such an ending.
Parenthetically:
There are reports of a strong under-cover anti-Hitlerian sentiment in Germany. Some are to the effect that there are "antis" who wouldn't stick at the assassin's method of trying to modifying the Berlin regime—if possible.
Naturally, however, Adolf objects to such a solution, both on patriotic and personal grounds, and counteracts in most efficient—by taking no chances.
He may be right about this. Perhaps his assassination simply would strengthen his cause. Of course, if Hitler starts a war

DIET AND HEALTH

Tularemia Danger of Hunting Season
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WITH THE advent of the hunting season, warning should be posted again of the danger of rabbit fever, as it has been nicknamed. It is technically called tularemia and that is a better term than rabbit fever because it can be caught from a number of wild animals—squirrels, muskrats, woodchucks, opossums and many game birds, including doves and quail. It can also spread through the bite of flies, ticks and mites. Still, most of the cases are traced to rabbits.
The germ of the disease lives in the bodies of one of these animals and is spread from one to another by the fly or tick. In man the infection is usually direct from contact with the animal.
It results mostly from dressing an infected animal. What happens is that a healthy looking and active rabbit is shot, and the hunter brings it home and proceeds to dress it with his bare hands. The rabbit, in spite of its healthy appearance, may be just saturated with the tularemia germ. It is in the muscles just under the skin and in the blood of those muscles and of the skin itself.
The rabbit skinner has a small scratch on his hand and the germ gets into this. Then a few days later an ulcer develops on this spot, and a lymph node enlarges somewhere up the arm. Maybe it will affect two or three lymph nodes. There is fever and a general feeling of fatigue.
It can all be prevented by wearing rubber gloves while dressing rabbits for the table. The gloves form an effective barrier between the germs and the skin.
This was definitely proved in one of our big markets in an eastern city. It had a widespread epidemic, almost all confined to market employees. When the cause became known, they were all required to wear rubber gloves and the epidemic ceased. So far as I know, this applies only to wild rabbits.
The condition usually wears itself out and the patient recovers. But they are really sick and uncomfortable while it is going on.
The form in which it starts in the finger and runs up the arm is the usual form, but it may also appear on the eye, probably from rubbing the eye with the finger. It may also appear as a pneumonia.
It is easy to determine positively in the laboratory whether a suspected case is tularemia by a blood agglutination test.
There is also a good serum treatment, once the diagnosis has become established. With the serum, the duration of the disease and the severity are shortened 50 per cent. Of course, the ulcer on the finger and the enlargement of the lymph nodes should be treated with poultices and antiseptic applications.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

BIDE YOUR TIME
RUSHING AHEAD to try a dangerous finesse, which beats your contract if it fails, is not astute bridge. Much sounder considerations impel making other moves first. It is possible and watching the fall of the cards, it may develop that the finesse is marked to lose, but that a squeeze or lead-throwing play will succeed. If not, you may still finesse.

AFRAID TO MARRY
by HELEN WELSHIMER
Written and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
CHAPTER 34
YOU CAN DO many things while your heart is breaking. You can eat, you can sleep, you can smile and gesture and talk. Sometimes you can do it so well that no one guesses that you are a mario-nette, performing on a lot of invisible strings.
That was the way it was with Judy during the next few days.
Once more she was acclaimed. Those same reporters who had been so quick to seize her picture when she had been connected with the Danceland story, welcomed the opportunity to herald the design contest. They told the public that she would be an assistant to Cordelli. They discovered her hotel address, printed it, and telephone calls, notes, invitations, flowers from old friends who had not known where she was, came in.
Judy was too tired at night to think. Now and then a crooked smile and the flash of a pair of gray eyes would puncture a dream, and she would waken, remembering.
Judy had a pile of clippings of her own venture. She paid no attention to her father's come-back though the stories sometimes linked that event with her own success. He had pushed her away when she had needed him. She would not go home.
She did move, though. This time she chose an apartment in an old red brick house in the lower twenties, east of Fifth avenue. She had the top floor rooms—a great beamed living room with a fireplace that was flanked by bookshelves, corner windows that opened on the street, a smaller bedroom, and a kitchenette. She had given the bedroom suite, the chaise longue, the desk and lounging chairs of her own room at the apartment, as a gift, so she sent for them with no twinge of conscience.
Cordale came over and helped her unpack, hang prints and draperies, arrange furniture.
When everything was ready Judy went down the street to a flower stand and bought lavishly—purple violets whose blooming was limited to a night; fragile yellow roses; an armful of old-fashioned flowers. She bought candles, too.
She had a home.
Not a place to stay until it was time to join her mother in some hotel abroad. Not a room in an American hotel where she could remain until her credit was exhausted. Not a bed in somebody's house for a span of days. A home.
A home, work, peace—these were the crying needs of the human heart and they were hers. She did not mention love, though she knew that the term waited just out of reach. She must work, work.
The bell which announced visitors rang, and she pressed the button which released the great front door, four flights down. She leaned over the railing, looking into the dim well of the stairs, and said: "Who is it, please?"
"The Press!" a cheerful voice called.
"In battle formation. We want pictures."
"Pictures? Why?"
"Editor's orders. The public wants to see how you're doing."
"The public doesn't care a hoot! You pack up those picture-taking boxes and right about face—!" She laughed as she said it.
"Too late, honey! We're in. Nice way to talk to a lot of people who want to give you a house warming."
There were five young men in the group, two of them reporters, three of them cameramen.
They came in. They took pictures, and Judy entered the spirit of it.
There was one tall boy, with rust-brown hair and gray eyes oddly like Ronald's. He was the merriest of the group.
"You haven't had a house warming?" he asked. "That will never do! I move we undo that damage at once. Peter, there's a delicatessen over on Sixth avenue—get cold chicken and ham and potato salad—you know the menu, Jimmy..."
He gave orders, and presently Judy and the five were facing a table filled with food.
It was all so gay, so comfortable, so informal that she relaxed. In that Park avenue world you dressed for every party. You wore one frock to a tea, and rushed home to change to a dinner or dance ensemble.
Judy sat in a deep chair as the logs burned in the fireplace. One of the reporters had known a Greenwood station, at the edge of Greenwich Village, where a quarter would buy enough timber to keep the fire going for a couple of evenings.
"You'll learn," he explained. "Never buy green wood, either. It doesn't burn."
Suddenly someone gave a whistle of complete surprise.
"The count!"
"It's nearly 10 o'clock!"
"Goodbye, Judy, we'll see you often!"
"The count?" she repeated.
"Not Count Philippe Alexis von Gunderfeld?"
"The same. Do you know him?"
They were putting on coats, adjusting cameras and papers.
"Very slightly. What has he done?"
"He's marrying a pretty widow this evening and sailing away on her yacht through the wintry waters to Bermuda."
"Mrs. Bedford?" asked Judy.
"Yeah! Where did you learn so much?"
"I heard something about it."
"There was an heiress but that popped, and he and the widow Bedford seem made for each other. The Boland child is making eyes at the attorney in the Griffith Steel jambooree." The boy who resembled Ronald said that. His name was Bob Cushing and he gripped Judy's hand as he left. He was a special assignment man.
"I want to see you soon—and often."
Later Judy wondered why he had come along that night. She did not know then that he had been at Toni's, one of the newspaper hangouts, when the four others came in, wondering where and why to find Judy Rogers before they went after the count. Through much telephoning around they obtained her address. With a loose evening on his hands, Bob Cushing decided to join the party.
He had seen Judy's pictures and liked the tilt of her nose, the upward slant of her laughing eyes. Here was a girl who could take what life dished out! He would like to know her.
However, he wanted to see Count Philippe before he sailed so he could not remain with Judy when his conferees left. He held her hand a second in leaving and his amused eyes surveyed the remains of the feast.
"There's enough for breakfast and dinner tomorrow night. If you'll wait, I'll drop by and help with the dishes."
Judy did not think he would. She was amazed the next evening when his shining head appeared on the stairs, in answer to her release of the door catch.
"I came, you see," he said. "I even brought some tea towels. I didn't think you had any."
"You wrote the kindest story about me that anyone ever did," she greeted him. "I'm so grateful I'll fry you two eggs and a rasher of bacon. You gave me credit for being a person, with a desire to earn my way, instead of something that glitters in reflected light."
Bob Cushing was not writing a book. He had no wish to do a play. He might delve into biography some day. He took life as it came, laughed a great deal more than most people of his age or profession, and fell a little in love with Judy.
But he did not mention it, and she divined it in small things, only. He sent her a flower a day in a small red box—one morning a snow white camellia; another, when he had just been paid, a purple orchid; once a nosegay of sweet peas.
He introduced her to others of his own group who welcomed her eagerly. She was busy with her work. Cordelli was considerate and appreciative. Her home was real, rare and wall and hearth. She was a person in her own right.
It was Bob who gave her the next news of Ronald.

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—Hazlitt.
Hints on Etiquette
If a woman meets a male acquaintance and stops to talk to him on a very cold day, she should suggest that he replace his hat on his head. Courtesy demands that he remove it when they meet and not resume it until they go their separate ways. He may, however, ask permission to put it on.

Kingston Eastern Star Guest of Local Chapter

65 at Meeting
Held Tuesday Evening

Social Calendar

Circleville chapter, No. 90, Order of the Eastern Star, met in special session, Tuesday, in the Masonic Temple. The members of the Kingston chapter were guests for the evening.

After the formal opening of the chapter in charge of Miss Virginia Marion, worthy matron, Miss Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, was welcomed and escorted to the East. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hohenstein, worthy patron and matron of Kingston chapter, were next welcomed and escorted East. Miss Marion in a welcoming address thanked the guests and members for their interest in the occasion.

An interesting program was presented by the Kingston chapter. Mr. Hohenstein acted as master of ceremonies. Frankie Wenzel of Chillicothe played a group of numbers on his accordion. A short skit, "Jack and Bessie at the Ball Game" followed. Taking the character parts were Mrs. Mae McCullough and Miss Virginia Lee Orr. This was well received and much enjoyed by the audience. James Mowery pleased the group with two piano selections, "Nocturne" and "Polichinelle" by Rachmaninoff. He responded to encores with "Minuet in G" by Chopin.

The regular meeting of the chapter, Tuesday, will include formal initiation.

Mrs. Given Hostess

Miss Bishop Given was hostess to her contract bridge club, Tuesday, Mrs. Harold Reid joining the members for the evening.

Holding high score tallies at the close of play, Mrs. Glen Geib and Mrs. Don Walker received the bridge favors. Lunch was served. Mrs. Geib will be next club hostess.

Mrs. Green Entertains

Mrs. Willis Green, S. Court street, entertained her sewing club, Tuesday, the members passing the hours in social visiting and sewing. Mrs. Green served a salad course at the close of the affair.

Mrs. Harriett Hennessy will be hostess at the next meeting.

Lutheran Women's Bible Class

Twenty-two members of the Women's Bible class of Trinity Lutheran church met in the parish house, Tuesday, for the regular session. Mrs. H. H. Groce, president, was in the chair for the business hour. Plans were discussed for filling a box for a missionary at a western post, which will be sent in December. Plans were made for an all day meeting in November at which time the members will complete the comforts which they have been making. The members sewed during the remainder of the meeting.

Benevolent Association

The Circleville Benevolent association met in regular session Tuesday at the city cottage. Reports were given by Miss Catherine Smith, secretary, and Miss Marvane Howard, treasurer, Mrs. W. T. Uim vice president, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. B. T. Hedges.

Reports were received of the Silver Tea given Sept. 29, which was very successful. Money for the Milk Fund received through this channel is to date $31.

Miss Clara Southward, case worker, gave her report for September. She had made 190 calls on clients and 53 in their behalf. Donations of clothing and household supplies were received from 12 persons. Supplies were given to 26 families. Five homes are supplied daily with milk, one quart to each family.

Miss Southward told of her recent visit at the meeting of the Ohio Public Health association at

Actress Surprised

BEAUTIFUL June Lang, considered by many the prettiest of the pretties in Hollywood, is among 2,111 other scared persons who rushed back to the U. S. on the liner Queen Mary as war scares mounted in Europe. Shown arriving in New York, Miss Lang denied that she intends to wed A. C. Blumenthal or anyone else. Miss Lang's name was linked with that of the millionaire when both sailed on the Normandie a few weeks ago. "Imagine my surprise," chirped Miss Lang, "when I met him on deck."

to her hair with a halo of chiffon. She carried a white prayer book with a spray of gardenias and shower of white pompons.

Miss Grace Rhoades of Columbus, the bride's sister, as maid of honor wore aqua blue satin, with a floor length plaited skirt and simple bodice with puffed sleeves. She wore a peach net veil caught to her head with a halo of like material. Mr. William Berens, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The Rev. Father J. J. Herman sang the nuptial high mass at 7:30 o'clock.

A wedding breakfast was served at 10 a. m. at the home of the bride's parents, for the members of the immediate families, wedding party and a few invited guests. Mrs. Rhoades, mother of the bride, received in teal blue with wine accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white gardenias. Mrs. Berens, the bridegroom's brother wore royal blue with black accessories and a corsage of pompons. The guests included Mrs. George Belhorn, Miss Alice Brandt, Miss Rosemary McKenzie and Miss Alma Rhoades.

The former Miss Rhoades is a graduate of Lancaster City hospital School of Nursing. Mr. Berens, an officer at the Boys' Industrial school, Lancaster, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Berens of that city.

After a week's trip to New York City and Canada, they will reside at 226 S. Maple street, Lancaster.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, October 5

AN INTERESTING DAY, but one in which personal indulgence in pleasure or social engagements may lure from the more sordid or commonplace activities, is read from the ruling planetary directions. Friendship, comradeship or more sentimental or romantic ties may be paramount and incite to extravagance.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a pleasant and rather merry year, in which social, romantic or domestic matters may be paramount. Indulgence, show and bids for the limelight may create financial stringency or embarrassments.

A child born on this day may have very high ambitions for prestige and personal popularity, bidding high for friendship, social or conspicuous standing, rather than common place objectives.

The average weight of the human male brain is about six ounces greater than that of the human female brain, but the female's thinking apparatus is larger in proportion to her body weight.

RED, BLACK GRIDDERS TO BE IDLE FRIDAY

Circleville high school gridders will be idle this week because of inability to schedule a satisfactory game. The next action for the Red and Black will be the following Friday when Frankfort invades the local field for a nocturnal contest.

Practices are continuing each evening with Coaches Roy Black and Tom Armstrong trying to weld together a strong unit. All the team's cripples were back in uniform Tuesday, and Bob Bowsher, who underwent an appendicitis operation before the opening of the grid season, has been working out. Marvin Jenkins, Johnny Noggie and Clark Martin will all be ready for action in the Frankfort scrap. Reports have it that Frank Woodward, speedy sophomore halfback, has quit school.

BLUES TO PITCH KEMP WICKER AGAINST NEWARK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—(UP)—The Kansas City Blues, American Association playoff winners, elected left-handed Kemp Wicker to stop the International league champion Newark Bears tonight in the fourth game of the "Little World Series."

Wicker, who pitched the Blues to victory in the opening tilt of the best-of-seven series, probably will face husky, young Atley Donald, who was batted out of the box in the second inning of that game.

The Bears, leading 2-1 in the series, are favorites to retain the minor league championship crown they won last year by beating the Columbus Red Birds four straight after dropping the first three games at home.

If Newark does win, it will put the International league into a tie with the American association for "Little World Series" honors, making the count 10 titles each. A victory for the Bears also will match the feat of the Baltimore Orioles in winning honors three times.

NOVA TO REST BEFORE NEXT 'HEAVY' BATTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Lou Nova, San Francisco heavyweight, planned today to leave for home Friday to take a long rest before fighting again. Lou, who upset Gunnar Barlund here Monday night, has had four fights in the last month and his manager, Ray Carlin, has prescribed a layoff. In a conference with Promoter Mike Jacobs, Nova expressed a desire to meet ex-heavyweight Champion Max Baer next. Jacobs did not agree, saying he wanted Nova for another one of his heavyweight elimination bouts in November.

Mrs. Daisy Stinson, Mrs. Blanch Hoskins, Mrs. Brigner, Mrs. George Betts, and Mrs. Earl Ater attended the County W. C. T. U. Convention held at the U. B. Church in Circleville Friday. Mrs. Stinson was again elected to fill the place of corresponding secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Wiser and children were Sunday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Willis.

Mrs. Erma Briggs was in Columbus Sunday for a visit with her brother-in-law Ernest Curry who is a patient at Mt. Carmel hospital. She also visited with Miss Betty James who is a student nurse at the same hospital.

Those who attended the Ohio State and Indiana foot ball game Saturday with the high school and faculty were Robert Campbell, Jay Skinner, John McCollier, Wendell Evans, Paul Maddax, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wright.

Wiley Campbell Jr., Misses Martha Ellen Wright and Addie Ruth Skinner will start in at Ohio State this week for their sophomore year. The two latter will be in their second quarter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Irvin, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Irvin and daughter, Ruth Ann, and Mr. and Mrs. William Blake were in Washington C. H. Sunday afternoon to hear Rev. Howard Cate at the fair grounds.

New Pro Coach

SUCCESSFUL HUGO LEACH, Art Lewis becomes new coach of the Cleveland professional Rams of the National league. Art is a former line coach at Ohio Wesleyan.

SCHMIDT SEEKS MORE POWER IN CENTER OF LINE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Coach Francis Schmidt today sought new line strength for Ohio State to cope with the gigantic forward wall which Southern California will put on display next Saturday in Ohio stadium.

The Buck coach concentrated on ironing out mistakes committed by tackles, centers and guards in the opening game against Indiana. He paid special attention to Steve Andracko, 1937 reserve center, who last Spring was ticketed for the starting berth but was nosed out this Fall by the fine showing of Sophomore Charley Maag.

Although the Sandusky yearling made an impressive debut in varsity game competition, Schmidt realizes the importance of replacement strength. Maag left the game exhausted early in the fourth quarter Saturday and the Hoosiers continued to threaten until the final gun.

Schmidt and Line Coach Ernie Godfrey also pointed out mistakes in opening game guard play to Bill Nosker, Vic Marino, Frank Smith and Jerry Speaks who saw the chief service. Ed Hofmayer, junior right guard, who appeared to have clinched a starting job until laid low by an injury, will be ready against the Trojans.

Performance of the Ohio State line probably will win or lose the Trojan game for the Bucks. Coach Howard Jones reportedly will start a front line that averages 215 pounds from end to end with plenty of huskies in reserve.

Ticket officials predicted today a crowd of 73,000 will attend the game, outstanding intersectional tilt of the day.

Chicago Hopes In Lee's Hands

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Have the band play "Dixie" for General Lee marches today, a latter-day General Lee who fights in the great tradition of Marse Robert and Lighthorse Harry, and who goes out to face the shot and shell of the New York Yankees in an attempt to send the Chicago Cubs winging off to victory in the opening game of the 1938 World Series.

Tell the home folk down in Plaquemine, La., that William Crutcher Lee, Jr., 195 pounds of bone, muscle and nerve, is going out there on the shore of Lake Michigan this afternoon and throw his heart out for Gabby Hartnett and the Cubs.

And all he asks is a good hot day that will sweat the kinks out of his long right arm and a fair share of the breaks.

He'll need 'em for out there against him, slamming that ball through for the Yankees, will be Red Ruffing, terror of the American league, whose fast one can hardly be seen on afternoons when the sun ducks the clouds. And in the batting box against General Lee will be that latest edition of "murderer's row," that awful gang of assassins who go by the names of DiMaggio, Gehrig, Dickey and Selkirk.

Odd Chance
The ones who lay the odds don't like the chances of the General and the Cubs. The Yankees are favorites, overwhelming favorites, here in the heart of enemy territory. Odds are fluctuating between 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 that the Broadway busters take this series and win their third consecutive world championship.

But hope springs eternal in the human heart and 43,600 persons are going to fight and claw their way into Wrigley field to see the General march again. He comes to this crucial hour, arm weary and tired. He pitched on four consecutive days when the Cubs were scoring down the stretch in a dog-eat-dog fight with the Pittsburgh Pirates for the National league pennant. He started games and he moved in there and finished games when other Cubs' pitchers weakened and wilted. He carried the burden on his big shoulders and there is no rest for the weary.

"Give me a good warm day and everything will be all right," he said in his lazy Bayou drawl. "If they're taking off their coats out in the bleachers, so much the better because that ball looks mighty small coming out of a white background."

What Of Bryant, Dean?
They're whispering it up and down State street today that it's all or nothing on the General. If he can't lick the Yankees, they say, who can? Clay Bryant throws a smoke ball and the Yankees murder smoke. Dizzy Dean? Well, he's got to prove his own case and the only way he can prove it is to get in there and toss his "nothing ball" up to the plate and see what happens.

Yes, it looks like it's strictly up to the General. If he comes out of today's game alive, he can go in there and pitch two more games provided the series goes six games. He's that kind of a guy—six feet, three inches of endurance and a work-horse who answers the call willingly when the bugle blows.

The general isn't complaining, but his chances would be better if he had fewer invalids behind him on the Cubs' roster. Augie Galan, a fleet outfielder and a good man to have up there swinging when the chips are down, is out of it with a wrenched knee. So Phil Cavarretta, who is hitting an anemic .235, is playing the outfield, and, believe it or not, is batting in the clean-up spot.

But the worst blow to the Cubs is the big right hand of Charles (Gabby) Hartnett, their manager and catcher. The first finger is swollen like a balloon and the third one has the nail almost ripped off of it and was leaking blood during yesterday's batting practice. But Hartnett says he will catch with his throwing hand swathed in tape.

If mental attitude means anything in a ball game, the Yankees have the best of it. They are relaxed and arrived in Chicago with a jaunty, care-free air as though this were just another series during the regular season. Bill Dickey was talking about hunting and Lou Gehrig about fishing. Nobody seemed worried about the World Series and Manager Joe McCarthy said he hadn't even bothered to scout the Cubs.

On the other hand the Cubs are tense. The Yankees' plans are fairly definite. It's Ruffing today, Gomez tomorrow and Monte Pearson in the opening game in New York. Hartnett is playing it on a day by day basis. It may be Bryant tomorrow, it may be Dean or it may even be grandpappy Charlie Root, oldest player in the big leagues. It all depends on General Lee and the kind of battle he fights today when the dust starts flying and he is on the march.

Bowling News

The Albaugh funeral service 10-pin team marked up a high score, Tuesday evening, in the city league by tallying 2,685 pins to win three straight games from the Yates-Sinclair service. The Albaughs put a single game score of 965 on the board in the second canto.

The Mader funeral service crew remained undefeated so far in the loop by taking three in a row from the Circleville Merchants. Highest scores were rolled by Geib, 582; Good, 581; W. Baker, 558; Heistand, 532; Campbell, 565; Hegele, 540, and Roth 542.

COUNCIL TO CONSIDER POLICE DEPARTMENT'S DAY-OFF REQUEST

FORTY SPECIAL OFFICERS TO BE USED IN SHOW

Bonds For Street Repair Project May Be Passed

HERRMANN SEEKS FUNDS

Hospitalization Of Relief Clients Considered By Director

Two matters concerning the police department will be up for consideration at council's regular meeting Wednesday night.

Members of the department sent a letter to council last month urging that legislation be passed providing that each member be given one day or night off each week. Under present conditions the patrolmen and chief work seven days a week. The letter explained this "free" day would be subject to cancellation by the chief in case of an emergency or illness of a member of the force. The letter was referred to the safety director and safety committee for consideration.

An ordinance is scheduled to come before the city dads for an appropriation of funds for special police during the Pumpkin Show. About 40 special police will be used during the celebration to guard intersections around the downtown district and do other police work.

Bond Issue Studied

Carl C. Leist, solicitor, said additional legislation will be considered for the issuance of $7,000 worth of bonds to meet the city's share of street improvements being conducted in connection with W. P. A. A resolution was adopted at the last meeting asking the city auditor to certify the maximum maturity on the bonds.

About $3,150 is needed to pay bills on the Washington and Mill street work, now completed, an additional $3,250 will be needed to meet expenses on the N. Pickaway street improvement.

Council may consider also a request of K. J. Herrmann, safety director, for an appropriation for funds for the hospitalization of relief clients.

Another issue that may be discussed by council is the offer of the B. P. O. Elks lodge, made last month, to aid the city in providing traffic lights for the protection of High school and Corwin street pupils. The lights would be placed on Court street. The safety committee of council was instructed to work with the lodge committee on the question.

Mess Boy Faces Court In Tibbett Jewel Theft

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Meyer Sopher, 23 year old mess boy who had a reputation of always losing at poker, faced a federal court hearing today on a charge of taking jewels valued at $12,000 from Lawrence Tibbett, the famous baritone.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents recovered $23,000 worth of the jewels and arrested Sopher when the Matson liner Monterey docked here after its trip from Los Angeles.

Sopher was arrested on a tip from Hubert Campbell, 35, dining room steward on the Monterey, who said Sopher showed him the jewels and at the time expressed a belief that they were imitation.

Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner E. E. Williams, Sopher was remanded to the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond while authorities attempted to find the other jewels.

Others Hidden

Nat J. L. Peiper, chief F. B. I. agent here, said Sopher made a complete confession of the theft but said he "couldn't remember" where he had hidden jewelry valued at almost $19,000.

"Gambling brought me to this," Sopher said. "If I hadn't gambled I'd never have gotten into this jam."

Crew members told investigators that Sopher was a "dumb" gambler who lost continually and was several hundred dollars in debt when the liner reached the mainland.

Peiper said Sopher had decided to attempt a recoup of his gambling losses with money to be taken from the staterooms of passengers. He took Mrs. Tibbett's jewels from the top drawer of a dressing table.

Sopher said he hid the jewels in various places around the ship. Some he stuck down the nozzle of a fire hose, others he placed in a dumb waiter. Still others he placed on a beam overhead and out of sight.

Among the jewels still missing were a diamond and ruby clip valued at $1,700; a $6,000 diamond and sapphire bracelet; a $2,000 diamond chain; a 115-pearl necklace with a marquise diamond snap, valued at $6,000; and a $4,000 marquise diamond chain.

Wife Near Collapse

Mrs. Tibbett, the former Mrs. Jennie Marston Adams Burgard of Hillsborough, Cal., was reported near collapse from worry at her home in Los Angeles. She and her husband were returning from Australia where Tibbett had given a series of concerts.

Sopher's home is in Baltimore.

Production Marks High Among Tested Cattle

With 53 herd improvement associations now operating in Ohio and a record number of cows on test, production figures still hold at high levels, according to Ivan McKellip, animal husbandry specialist, Ohio State university.

The latest association reports show four herds in the 5 to 15 classification with an average of more than 50 pounds of butterfat for the month. The herd owners are Wayne Brewer, Darke association; H. E. Corday, Licking; Paul Miller, Defiance-Paulding-Henry; and Bittersweet Farms, Lorain No. 2.

For herds with over 15 cows, two averaged more than 50 pounds of fat. The five high in the large herd classification were Paul L. Rhoades, Summit association; J. H. Stingel, Holmes-Coshocton; Charles Reimer, Lucas-Wood; Ray Van Schoyck, Madison-Darby; and C. B. Heifner and Son, Ashland-Richland.

Two cows produced more than 100 pounds of fat during the month. Their owners are Spring Day farm, Clark association, and Elmer Wood and Chauncey Cover, Morrow. Owners of cows producing over 85 pounds of fat are Old Glory Farms, Lucas-Farms, Lucas-Wood; Paul L. Rhoades, Summit; Ray Van Schoyck, Madison-Darby; and Lamar Young, Trumbull No. 1.

Association members sold 133 low producers for beef and 87 high cows during the month. They bought 42 grade and 33 purebred cows and 12 purebred bulls. Mr. McKellip says the sales of cows are good proof of the value of testing; the butcher gets the boards and the herd owner gets good prices for good cows with association records.

One of the valuable byproducts of the association records is the proving of herd sires. Bulls which have enough daughters whose production records exceed those of their dams are accredited as proven sires. Twenty-four bulls divided between four breeds now are accredited in Ohio. Those valuable animals can be sold for breeding purposes instead of beef when their original owner has to replace them.

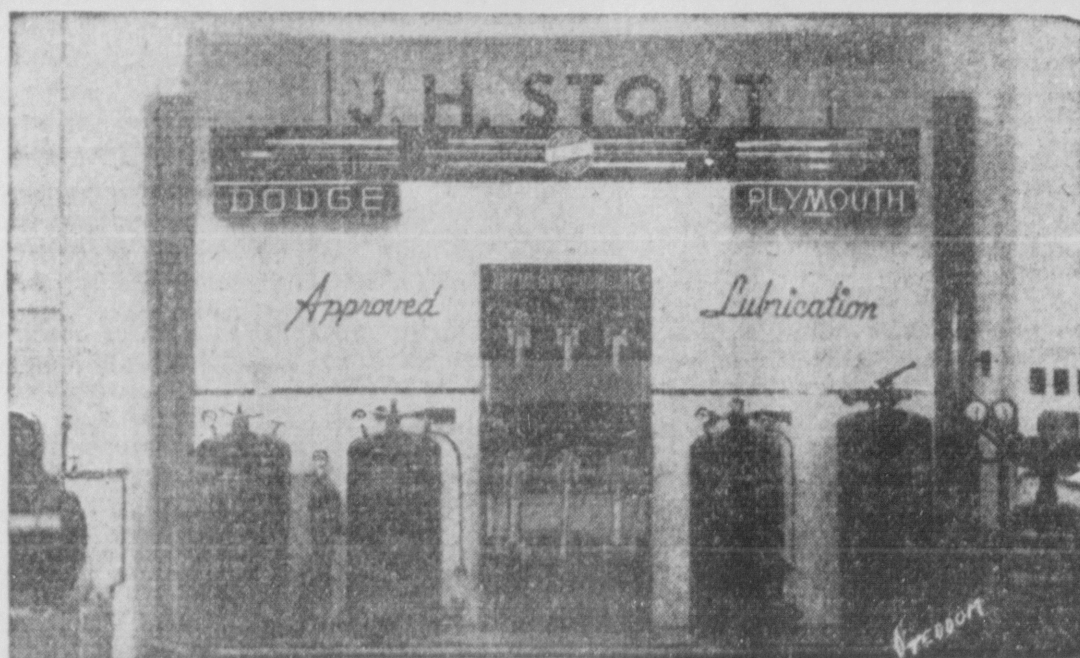

Estate Goes to Four Winds

SAN JOSE, Cal. (UP)—An estate of $50,000 built up by the late Jean Laborde in the Mexican mercantile business under the terms of his will, is to be scattered to the four winds. Part goes to relatives in the Middle West, part to others in France, Algeria and Indo-China.

strikes. It begins when the father is sent to jail on a murder charge, and follows the mother, son and daughter after they move to cheap quarters in a sordid section of the city.

AT THE CIRCLE

If you had been called a button-headed little idiot, with an ivory dome, by a man you thought was a murderer and perhaps even slightly mad, what would you do if, through a series of strange circumstances, you got handcuffed to him and were forced to stay all night at a tavern and admit you were an eloping couple?

In such a situation in "The 39 Steps," the GB production showing for the last time at the Circle Theatre, Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll make the sparks fly—sparks of anger that eventually lead to sparks of love. And all the while police are hot on the trail of Donat, who is hot on the trail of the who, what and where of the 39 steps, and how secret government information is being stolen out of the country.

RUDY VALLEE TO CLOSE BUCKEYE LAKE DANCING

RUDY VALLEE and his original "Connecticut Yankees" and Company will be presented at the Lake Breeze Pier dance pavilion, Buckeye Lake, Friday.

Vallee will leave New York by special train immediately after his Thursday night broadcast, and come directly to the Lake with a company of around 40. Bleachers will be erected in the pavilion to accommodate those that do not care to dance.

It will be the last dance of the season.
